Boys play with poodles By: Brooke Decker

On December 9, 1990, Spencer Lee Gross was born to Tom and Shannon Gross. He is now 18 years old and has seven younger siblings. He enjoys basketball, soccer, snow skiing, wake boarding, and paintballing. His favorite subject is science. One of Spencer's favorite child hood memories was when he was seven years old. Ryan Hofer and Tyson Decker were "babysitting" the Reinder's poodle with Spencer. They had a tree fort in the backyard and had decided that they should take the poodle up in the tree fort with them. They carted the dog up the tree and into the fort. The next task for the boys was how they were going to get the poodle down from the fort. They came up with the idea to have Ryan and Tyson hold a blanket on the ground. Thinking his aim was right, Tyson let go of the poodle. The poodle hit the ground and broke its legs.

Students pray By: Tanner Landstrom

On Wednesday, September 23 many high school students came to school earlier than usual to participate in See You at the Pole. The theme for SYAP this year was "Engage: Go and Pray" and is taken from 2 Kings 22:13. The students all arrived at 7:30 and gathered around the flagpole outside the school. Once everybody showed up the prayer and worship time began with singing some worship songs. After that, they began to pray for our country's leaders, our families, and our schools. This gathering of students continues to be more and more successful, drawing larger numbers of students every year.
